

Program Overview: The Good Faith™ Food Box

What is the Purpose? The purpose of the Good Faith™ Food Box is to stretch the food dollars of individuals and families across the nation while we equip and resource the work of local churches and non-profits to meet nutrition needs.

Who Can Participate? The Good Faith™ Food Box is open to anyone would like to order. While it offers a special opportunity to those who are challenged to keep food on the table, it also helps those who are watching their budget, and people who want to be generous and multiply their giving.

How Does it Work? The Good Faith™ Food Box is ordered through local churches and non-profits with a monthly deadline and single delivery date each month. These local Good Faith™ Partners collect these orders, and submit them prior to each month's deadline, with orders arriving about 2 weeks later.

How is it Delivered? The food comes by refrigerator truck in a pre-packed frozen box. Volunteers help unload the food at each church or non-profit and then distribute the food to each individual, with pick up available shortly after delivery.

What's in the Good Faith™ Food Box? The box is all frozen and filled with meat, vegetables, ready to eat casseroles as well as a special dessert item.

How Does it Help? Good Faith™ Food Box provides quality groceries at 40 to 60% below the cost of retail. It helps everyone who participates to improve their nutrition and to stretch their budget.

How Much Does it Cost? The current cost per box is $35, and we will continue to build as much as possible into the box.

Will You Offer Additional Boxes? We will be developing additional boxes in the months to come with the goal of retaining at 40 to 50% value beyond retail in each box. User requests and suggestions will help guide us to the kind of boxes that we will create.

How Do You Get the Program in Your Community? As we establish the program in your community, we will be looking for partners who want to share the value and benefit of the program, and we will establish anchor (delivery) locations based upon both commitment and participation. To get started plan to order during the Holiday Season and begin building participation and interest.
